Dear...

Anxiety. It's not a way to live life. I suffered from it for years. My anxiety appeared to be unrelated to anything that I was experiencing at the time. I'd have to call it free floating.

Sometimes it felt like background music that followed me everywhere.

The blessed remedy that helped me was Aconitum. I'll never forget the sensation of relief I experienced when I took it. And it never returned. That was over 20 years ago!

Read on to learn about other remedies that may be ready to lend a hand for you or your loved one.

Love,

During the time of and shortly after 911, homeopathy became a most powerful tool in addressing fear and anxiety. Many folks from NYC and Washington, D.C. turned to homeopathy.

Years later, we are faced with a national economic struggle and the similar phone calls flood homeopathy offices. How can homeopathy address the uncomfortable emotions of anxiety and fear?

First, we need to understand that homeopathy doesn't treat the symptoms. Instead, it uses the symptoms to find the correct remedy.

We must look at how the suffering is experienced.

Is the person shaky, restless or talkative? Does he look cowardly, irritable, or upset? The symptoms must be considered.

Symptoms are our gifts that represent the inner experience of the sufferer. We can ask: Are you depressed? But, our observation can often be more fruitful. This would be shown by a smile-less expression, eyes gazing downward or a furrowed brow.

Observational skills are paramount.

One of the first homeopathic remedies for anxiety after a fear from a market turn or any other similar shock is Aconitum.

Aconitum is a remedy for exactly that... shocking news. It is useful for someone who becomes frightened in a crowd, is full of anguish, restless, has difficulty concentrating, fears sensations at the heart or fears the dark and darkened rooms.

In fact, it is one of our first choices for someone who feels like they might have an impending heart attack.

It is also useful for an anxiety that has been locked away in the person's psyche for many years.

Take Katherine, for example. After being robbed at knifepoint 15 years ago, she discovered she couldn't go into crowds.

Realizing it wasn't normal she tried meds prescribed by her doctor, but they just made her feel emotionally flat. Then, she attempted hypnosis. It was innocuous enough, but she simply couldn't fully get past the dread.

After three days of taking Aconitum 200c, she was able to go to a philharmonic concert without a care. Previous to this, although she was a symphony enthusiast, she simply couldn't remain seated.

If Aconitum seems remarkable, consider another remedy, Argentum nitricum.

It too, covers anxiety, but instead of experiencing it in the heart, this sufferer feels it in the stomach region, particularly at the navel area. The person who needs Argentum nitricum is always in a hurry, fidgety, scared and must walk quickly until he finds he's nearly running. He runs and runs until he exhausts himself.

This person lives in horrifying fear of impending doom, always anticipating the worst. Digestion becomes a problem and the sufferer can barely eat. Instead, he shakes at the thought of the fears that control him the most.

There are few places in the world where we can turn to assuage the fears that abound. Homeopathy offers this calm cadence.

The little pills of homeopathy that are gentle, polite and oh, so powerful can, at times of stress, become a powerhouse of stillness and comfort.

Never addicting, always without side effects and oddly enough, remarkably inexpensive. Join the millions of others throughout the world who have come to depend on the power of homeopathy and step into the peace of relief.
