7 of My Most Popular Blogs From 2015: Time to Review and Get Back to Curing Your Family with Homeopathy

Courtney, one of our team members, recently conducted a search of the most popular blogs I've written during 2015 by reviewing which ones received the best traction, were shared most often, and generated the greatest interest from readers.

Just in case you missed one, or simply need a quick refresher, here they are for you to revisit and share.

Remember, I get my ideas from your input, so please keep your questions, needs and concerns coming in!

1) Measles Revisited February 7th, 2015: On this day, I offered a guest post by one of my staff members, Paola Brown, about her experience with measles growing up in Brazil. I thought you might like to revisit measles, as measles-phobia is still the darling of mainstream media. http://joettecalabrese.com/blog/measles-revisited/

2) "Mom, I'm Really Sick." May 10th, 2015: Back in May, I received a nighttime call that all mothers recognize; a call from their sick child. My son's voice was weak and muted. "Mom, I'm really sick." Although it was late, and I hate to hear his voice with anything but a robust tone, the upside was that he called me.

Not a doctor, not a clinic.

I grabbed my homeopathy kit and my husband (he had to drive), while still talking to our son on the way. I wanted to hit the ground running to administer remedies as soon as we reached his apartment. I spent the night treating him with my homeopathics for a severe headache.

At first, I misjudged my initial remedy choice but corrected it after a short time. By morning, the outcome was wonderful. Our son was better; much better. I was feeling pretty good, and I could sense my husband's pride in my ability to once again effectively treat a family member. http://joettecalabrese.com/blog/homeopathic-remedies/mom-im-really-sick/

3) The Wrong Question Begets the Wrong Answer: Ear Pain, Teeth Pain and Homeopathy September 20th, 2015:

Would you ask your accountant how to replace your roof?

Of course not.

As this grandmother learned, it's best not to ask a pediatrician about a homeopathic medicine. Read on to learn how this grandmother cured her granddaughter's ear infection, as well as my advice to her daughter. Then tuck this gem of a remedy away for pain during teething, and even wisdom tooth pain. http://joettecalabrese.com/blog/the-wrong-question-begets-the-wrong-answer-ear-pain-teeth-pain-and-homeopathy/

4) Free Homeopathy First-Aid Chart October 25th, 2015: Years ago as a young mother, I read that death in children occurred more often from accidents than illness. It was a pivotal moment for me. Fevers don't kill, I learned, but a head injury could. Chickenpox might be uncomfortable, but it wasn't going to maim my child like a burn or laceration. Today, I direct you to my Free first aid chart to download, stick to your refrigerator and use either in your kitchen or on your way to the hospital. http://joettecalabrese.com/blog/free-homeopathy-first-aid-chart/

5) Hephar Sulph: The Homeopathic Antibiotic? November 15th, 2015: I'm often asked if I had to choose the most important remedies to have on hand at all times, what they would be. One of my all-time favorites is Hepar sulphuricum calcaria. Find out how it puts antibiotics to shame. http://joettecalabrese.com/blog/hepar-sulph-the-homeopathic-antibiotic/

6) Cataracts Halted, Even Improved With Homeopathy December

13th, 2015: Cataracts halted, even improved with homeopathy. The logic seems simple, flawless even. If you can avoid cataract surgery, why wouldn't you? Besides, who wants another drug added to their daily list that for many, is so long it unfurls like an ancient Roman scroll? http://joettecalabrese.com/blog/cataracts-halted-even-improved-with-homeopathy/

7) My Solution for Colds and Coughs: Homeopathically, of Course! December 20, 2015: Through the years, I've used many remedies for colds and coughs, and had accepted that there is not just one solution. But then, a few years ago, I learned a lovely little protocol from the Drs. Banerji. Trust me, it's a winner! http://joettecalabrese.com/blog/my-solution-for-colds-and-coughs-homeopathically-of-course/

The implied message here is, if this information helps you or has in the past, I urge you to put yourself out there and cure someone else…even those outside of your immediate social circle or comfort zone.

A sick cat in the neighborhood.

A new friend at church.

That neighbor you've been meaning to get to know.

Choose your remedy wisely and make 2016 the year that homeopathy changes both yours and your family's life for the better!

Warmly,

Joette
