

First Aid

Homeopathy has a sterling reputation for addressing injuries and first aid. In England, during WWll, the homeopathic hospitals reported many cures and recoveries that were remarkably beyond the capacities of the other hospitals of conventional medicine. While conventional hospitals were still wallowing in mercurochrome and other quaint nostrums, the homeopaths were forging ahead using powerful, but gentle, medicines that have been used for 200 years and remain in use throughout the world today.

The information provided in this article is for educational purposes only and may not be construed as medical advice. The reader is encouraged to make independent inquiries and to seek the advice of a licensed healthcare provider.