Homeopathy Is a Mother's Movement!

Happy Mother's Day!

I was planning to write about the meaning of motherhood, but when faced with an empty page and a keyboard, This is what I think we can all agree upon:

We are the lionesses of our families. The guardians at the gate. The protectors, the teachers, the nurturers, the healers.

We are mothers.

Over the last centuries, conventional medicine was known for its ways of bloodletting, leeches, mercury (and plenty of it) as well as arsenic. Understandably, mothers went in search of safer, gentler methods to provide care for their loved ones which is why a century ago, most mothers embraced homeopathy.

Today, the list of harsh traditional medicines is different, but the story is still the same. Mothers are tired of the same old drugs of commerce. They're tired of combating allergies and food intolerances as a direct result of antibiotics, inhalers, steroids and synthetic hormones. Tired of worrying about the potential of opioid addiction as a consequence of traditional pain management after surgery.

On this Mother's Day, we stand on the shoulders of the mothers who came before us. After necessary surgical procedures, such as a dental extraction, we can provide our families with a homeopathic substitute for addictive opioid painkillers. Like the mothers of yesteryear, we rely on Hypericum perforatum 200 (or even higher) to alleviate pain without concern for dire consequences such as headaches, constipation, addiction or withdrawal.

OWN THIS MEDICINE! No homeopathic mom should be without Hypericum – in several potencies, but especially in a 200. In fact, if you don't already own this medicine, today is the perfect day to ask for it! If your husband or children haven't already bought you a gift to commemorate Mother's Day, make a suggestion!

Sorry. I couldn't resist…

Roses are red.
Boiron is blue.
Homeopathic healing
Is what they'll get from YOU!

After all, this gift is not only for you – it will benefit the entire family if you have exactly what you need when you need it. Load up your homeopathy kits with medicines you may not need yet but are commonly used. Nothing is more frustrating for a mother than to watch her loved ones suffer while she is waiting for a remedy order to come in the mail.

The "Mothers of Yesteryear" have willed us the legacy of homeopathy. Homeopathy is a Mother's Movement!

And we need to take our charge valiantly and seriously.

Let's be sure we responsibly carry this torch to give the mothers of tomorrow the same opportunities we were given – to care for our families at home, self-reliantly, safely and efficaciously, with homeopathy!

Have a wonderful Mother's Day! God bless you and your family!

Warmly,

P.S. My gift to you today – as it is every day – is the free resources I provide. You obviously know about my blog posts and hopefully, you've listened to my podcasts and viewed my Facebook Live videos, but don't forget I also have a Free Resource area on my website that links to various articles, case studies, research and other homeopathic sites. I hope you'll utilize it as thoroughly as you can to learn more. I also am present on the social media platforms you enjoy: Facebook, YouTube, Twitter, Pinterest and Instagram.

Let's keep our movement going!!
