

Sophia Patel – Omaha, Nebraska

June of 2017 found me (once again) searching the internet for answers to my chronic health conditions. When I came across Joette's website, I knew that there was something different about it – something that offered more hope than any of the other solutions I had tried. I enrolled in one of her courses and I could see quite readily that homeopathy truly delivered all that it promised. Many months later, I came across an old blog post that I had written where someone had commented and directed me to Joette's website. Although I disregarded the comment at the time, I will forever be grateful to the anonymous commenter who planted a seed within my mind. By the time I came across Joette's courses through my own searching, that seed had germinated to the point where I was ready and willing to give homeopathy a fair chance. And now as I enjoy health that is much improved thanks to homeopathy, I am excited to continue planting the seed and sharing with others the wonderful results they too can find through homeopathy.
