I had a chemical reaction from using disinfecting wipes under my arms because I was sweating at a show and did not have any deodorant. I did not know that was what it was (I thought they were wet wipes). I suffered a terrible chemical burn under my arms, began to sweat profusely around my head and neck, didn't know what was wrong and felt a horrible burning sensation like my underarms were on fire. It kept getting worse as the day went on and by the end of the day I was in so much pain I almost went to the ER. In tears, I called Joette, and after lots of Joette's expert inquiries, I figured out what the burn was from and which remedy would best address my body's reaction.

And in less than 24 hours it was completely gone! It went from a screaming 10 in pain to zero.
