I am a terrible dental patient. I've had a lot of trauma associated with my teeth and this newest problem is just another chapter. I had a bad tooth that needed removal and a bone graft. This required 8 – 10 shots that never fully numbed the pain. I took codeine and Ibuprofen for the pain and then had relentless nausea instead. It wasn't until I called Joette and we discussed what she had taught us in class about Nux vomica 30 that the nausea was finally relieved. With a few doses of Hypericum 200 every hour, the pain was also relieved.

The dental procedures I've had through the years would've been markedly easier had I used these remedies from the onset, instead of conventional drugs.

Joette's teachings and homeopathy have changed my view of post dental work trauma. I still hate it, but at least it's manageable.
