I took a hard kick to my breast from my 10 month old while changing his diaper. A scary lump, deep in my breast formed, but even worse the pain was severe and even excruciating while nursing. It lasted for nearly 2 days until I finally called Joette. I have never felt such extreme pain. Yet, within a few hours of taking Bellis perennis, the pain subsided and now, 24 hours later, the lump is minimal with no discomfort while nursing! What would I have done if homeopathy hadn't been available?
