In May 2010, Little Lizzy, my three-year old daughter, woke up with very labored breathing and taking a short breath every second or two. She also had congestion. I gave her some cell salts to try to help her. Nothing was helping. After 8 hours, I took her to her pediatrician because I was afraid and unaware of what this type of breathing might do to her oxygen level. They said she was having an asthma attack and need to give her steroids and a breathing treatment. Begrudgingly, I allowed them to do so. They sent me home with 2 prescriptions, one to help her congestion and the other a steroid. Upon going to bed, I gave her the congestion medicine, but my husband and I could not bring ourselves to give her the steroid. Thankfully, we had an appointment with Joette the following day. After our meeting with Joette, we started her on Sulphur for one day, then Arsenicum album for the next two days. It worked like a charm. When we went back to pediatrician for a follow up visit the next day, they were very pleased with her progress. I did not give her any steroids and only two doses on the congestion medicine. After seeing Joette, homeopathy did all the work – WITHOUT STERIODS. Thank you Joette!
