Hi Joette, I am reading your article in Wise Tradition's Winter 2010 issue about your son's 105 degree fever. Something similar happened to me when my son was an infant. He had a fever of 106 degrees.

I don't remember the homeopathic remedy I gave him but the fever was gone in about a half hour also.

His doctor did not believe that he could possibly have had a temp that high. That was enough right there, to turn me off and steer me to the remedies that I had. I still use homeopathy even more so today. Homeopathy works.
