About a year ago, my husband and I went to a new dentist. Money was extremely tight and we couldn't afford our regular dentist so we used a coupon and went to another dentist. Now, just to give you a little background, I have only had 2 or 3 cavities in my lifetime. When we went to the dentist, Paul and I were told that we both had 3 cavities, Paul had one that was effecting two teeth. I was shocked. Paul gets cavities from time to time but I couldn't believe that we both had three at once.

We decided not to get them filled. Upon your teachings, I increased my intake of Calc flour 6x and Calc phos 6x. Paul did not. We both continued to drink raw milk, also as a result of your teachings.

We received new health insurance which had dental coverage and our favorite dentist accepted our new insurance. On Valentines Day, we went back to our regular dentist and NO CAVITIES were found!!!! Was it because we went to a different dentist or did our body heal itself of the cavities?....you decide. I never knew it was possible for your body to heal itself of cavities but, I am convinced that is exactly what happened. Thanks again for your guidance!
